Editor's note: This is the second in a series on life in the early Glades published in serial form. The series is based on the recollections of C.A. "Mutt" Thomas as written by Ruth S. Irvin. WE MOVED TO FORT LAUDERDALE

In the late summer of 1922 the rains came and by September 30 the rainfall was 10 inches in excess of the annual average for the year. The level of Lake Okechobee rose five feet. Travel from the lake to Kissimmee could be made on a solid sheet of water. The lake level was 22 feet, or better. Water flooded Ritta Island which had an elevation of 21 feet as it had just been cleared and had not yet packed down. Bare Beach, Clewiston, Okeelanta as well as the islands were under water. Some land on Ritta Island is now 17½ feet. The chickens hadn't been off the roost in thirty days. Captain Forbes' old mule would come up at night and pull them off by their tail feathers. They would squawk and Daddy would go out and put them back on the roost. He finally put up some wire and tin to keep the mule out. Chicken snakes fell on the mosquito nets that hung from the rafters and covered our beds at night. My dad would get up and throw the snakes outside. Water moccasins were everywhere. Even before the heavy rains came they were plentiful. I have seen my mother go out with a rifle when she heard one of her hens squawk in a certain way. She would find a dead hen and nearby a moccasin. She would shoot and kill the snake every time. The field on had to be gathered in by boat and we shelled it in Gus McGahe's barn on the west side of the Island. The only part of the island out of water was the ridge on his farm.

Uncle Mays and his wife moved to Ralph Bishop's farm at Ritta where she kept house and cooked for Mr. Bishop and Uncle Mays worked for himself. The outlook was not good with water covering the island. Uncle Mays persuaded my dad to move to Fort Lauderdale.

We went on Shaleford's freight barge. We loaded on all our furniture, the shelled corn and all the chickens. We left at dark and entered the North New River Canal. The first stop was at the Old Everglades Locks in South Bay. Mr. Willis

Rockette reunion held in South Bay

By ALMA HENRY

SOUTH BAY—Armed with fond memories and old photographs, several Radio City Music Hall Rockettes gathered Saturday at South Bay Growers, Inc.

One of the area's largest food producing industries, South Bay Growers' Administrative offices were filled with laughter and "remember that number" reminiscents when six alumni members gathered for the Fourth Annual South Florida Reunion.

Mrs. Dorothea McGee of Belle Glade, a Radio City Music Hall Rockette from 1943 to 1952 spearheaded the reunion with the assistance of Frank Teets, vice-president/general manager of South Bay Growers.

Mrs. McGee said previous reunions were held in several Florida coastal cities and she wanted to show the ladies there was something in between Palm Beach and Fort Myers.

Mrs. Miriam Morgan (formerly Casner), the fourth Alumni President of the Rockette Alumni Association said "it's sort of like a sorority."

Formerly of Atlanta, Mrs. Morgan danced with the Rockettes from 1936 through 1943. She said where ever she goes she tries to look up former

Sewage relief request denied

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE—The Belle Glade City Commission, citing legal restraints, failed to take action on a request from the Belle Glade Housing Authority for relief from increased sewage rates.

David Motes, the authority's executive director, had requested the relief because of the added burden he said it places on the authority's budget.

He said the only way to increase funds would be through a rent increase that must be approved by the Farmers Home Administration.

"Our rent rates are controlled by Farmers Home Administration," he stated in his request to the city. "We had to carry the recent rate increases several months without a rent increase. A request for rent rate increase requires about one year to get approved and put into effect."

"That wouldn't be quick enough to avoid difficulty in this year's budget," Motes said.

"When our current budget was made up we did not include nor anticipate this large rate increase," Motes stated. "It is my hope that the city will reconsider the Housing Authority's sewer rate, and that our current rate would remain unchanged until October 1, 1983."

He said the rate increase will cost the authority about $75,000 more in sewage and sanitation bills than in the past.

Prior to the increases the city adopted in 1982, the authority had spent about $121,555 in a nine month period in 1981. He estimated that figure to increase to about $232,233 through September in 1983.

"It's a little difficult when you have a limited source of income and it takes a year to get the income you do get," Motes told the commission Monday night, January 10.

Commissioner George Goforth, Jr. asked why the authority hadn't better prepared for the rate increases the city commission was openly planning.

"It was my understanding at that time (when the proposed rate increases were first discussed in December 1981) that it was mentioned that this increase was in the works," said Goforth.

"Well, that's true," said Motes, adding that the Pahokee council wants administrative help

PAHOKEE—The city council members in Pahokee all seemed to agree that the city needs some sort of administrative help, but failed to determine what form that assistance may take Tuesday night, January 11.

Instead, it opted to study its options before making a final decision, possibly in time to have the question of whether to hire a city manager put on the city election ballot in May.

The council discussed the possibility of hiring an administrative assistant to the mayor in recent meetings, but, apparently fearful that hiring such an assistant would violate the decision of an October 1981 referendum, discussion at the January 11 meeting centered on hiring a Finance

Director or a book keeper or putting the issue of a city manager up for another vote.

Councilman George Tillis suggested that a Finance Director be placed on a referendum, but Councilman Ronnie Graydon objected to that because voters' rejection would prevent them from hiring one.

Voters had rejected the city manager concept in the 1981 straw ballot and the council has been citing those results since as the reason for failing to hire one.

The straw-ballot at the time was termed "non-binding."

City Clerk Betty McCoy agreed the city has to Task forces discusses status of SR 80 projects

BELLE GLADE—The State Road 80 Task Force appointed by State Representative James Tapp discussed the status of the proposed four-laning of the killer highway at a meeting in Belle Glade City Hall Tuesday, January 11.

William Fowler, the district engineer for the state Department of Transportation, detailed the various stages of the projects for the task force members.

The four-laning project has been divided into seven segments, Fowler said.

The western segment has already been partially completed, he said. That segment, from the Glades Office Building just north of Belle Glade to US 98 13.8 miles east, has been four-laned, but not paved. The paving phase of the project would cost about $7.5 million, he said.

To four-lane and pave the segment from 20 Mile Bend to the spot where the new segment connects into US 98, a distance of about five and a half miles, would cost just over $7.3 million according to estimates prepared for the department a couple of years ago, he said.

To four-lane and pave a segment of about four and a half miles east from 20 Mile Bend would cost about $12 million according to the old estimates.

From that spot east to SR 7 the four-laning cost would be about seven million dollars, he said.

The intersection of 80 and seven would cost about $4.2 million.

Four-laning the stretch between SR 7 and Military Trail, a distance of about five and a half miles, would cost $15.5 million, according to the old estimates Fowler was using.

To complete the job and four-lane the road to the interstate 95 interchange would cost about eight million dollars.

Fowler said he realized the old estimates would have to be revised because purchase of right of way and construction costs would probably rise.

'Bootleggers' draw complaint

PAHOKEE—Henry Crawford, a taxi driver in Pahokee, told the city council Tuesday, January 11, that the city could probably support a couple more licensed cabs if the illegal "bootleggers" were controlled.

"The basic problem is that we have 16 certified cabs in the city, but we have 35 that ain't legal," he said.

His remarks were prompted by the appearance of John Slydell, who has been requesting a city taxi license for about a month.

Crawford told the council that he had complained to the police about some of Slydell's activities when he believed them to be illegal, but added that he would have no objection the council approving an increase in the number of taxi licenses and giving one to Slydell.

He said the real concern of licensed taxi drivers in Pahokee was unlicensed drivers who underprice the certified cabs and pull business away from them. He said many of the illegal cab drivers park their vehicles near the taxi stands.

The "bootleggers," as Crawford called them, eat into the business of the individuals who operate under the laws of the city. If questioned, he said many will reply that they are just carrying friends and don't get paid for the service.

Police Chief Carmen Salvatore III agreed that it is hard to crack down on the illegal cab drivers. "There's not very much we can do about it," he said. "I don't have any solution to this thing."

"We used to get calls to go to Thirteenth the first of every month when peoples get their food stamps or whatever," said Crawford. "But now, the only time we go to Thirteenth is when we go to buy our groceries."

Salvatore said he didn't think a traffic study would help anything. The council had requested a traffic study to determine whether the number of city cab licenses should be increased.

"Every season we got the same problem," he said. "Four months out of the year we could use some more cabs."

He said he wasn't recommending a temporary license just for the season.

In other business, the council:

• Learned that the lease on the Pahokee Harbor expired Sunday, January 9, 1983 because William Joiner failed to sign a revised lease and return it by that date. Joiner leases the facility from the city.

City Attorney Michael Stauder said he will examine the matter.

• Scheduled a workshop for Wednesday, January 19 at 7:30 p.m. in city hall to discuss revisions to the ordinances governing trailers.

Accident claims life

A single-vehicle accident claimed the life of a Belle Glade man early Tuesday morning, January 11.

Mario Selva, 39, of 301 NW Avenue H Place in Belle Glade, was traveling north on Hatton Highway when he attempted to steer his 1975 Chevrolet into the Osceola Farms entrance. He missed his turn and struck the bridge. His vehicle did a nose-dive into the canal and Selva apparently drowned, according to Florida Highway Patrol reports.

Troopers C.E. Floyd and A.Q. Morris investigated the incident.

McGee. "But they were just wonderful."

Joining the Rockettes eleven years after the group moved to New York, Mrs. McGee said she always wanted to be a Rockette.

The history of the Rockettes goes back to 1925, when a troupe of 16 precision dancers billed as the "Missouri Rockets" made their debut at the Missouri Theatre in St. Louis. Founder-director, Russell Markert, took the Rockets on tour and within a year they were appearing at the Rivoli Theatre in New York where they were an instant success.

Spotted by show biz impresario S.L. (Rox) Rothafel, the Rockets were renamed the Roxyettes and became the resident performers at the Roxy Theatre. In 1932 they made their debut at Radio City Music Hall and, in 1934, changed their name to the Rockettes.

Prior to joining the Rockettes, Mrs. McGee said she performed with the St. Louis Municipal Opera, St. Louis, Mo., and the United Services Organization (U.S.O.), entertaining service men abroad and in the United States.

"I saw a picture of the Rockettes in a magazine and I said to myself, 'I want to be a Rockette,'" she said.

During the summer of 1943, she auditioned as a summer replacement. "I was hired and when summer was over, I was gone," said Mrs. McGee.

For the next eleven years, Mrs. McGee would dance with the Rockettes and pick up the name "Dodo."

"Everybody had a nickname," she said. There was a Duffy, Flip, Dick, Birk, Peg, and so forth. The Rockettes gathered for Saturday's reunion, with smiles on their faces were somewhat hesitant to recall their nickname and some had just plain forgotten their name.

Radio City used to house a cafeteria, a hospital and dormitory where the dancers (many of them teenagers) could stay if rehearsals started particularly early the next morning.

"We would do four or five shows a day," Mrs. McGee recalled, "and rehearse in between. 'We would start a new show in Thursday of each week,'" she said.

For her efforts Mrs. McGee said she was paid

$45.00 per week. When she left the show in '52 she was making $87.50 per week. Mrs. McGee said she decided to call it quits after the birth of her daughter.

"My husband and I wanted a normal life for our daughter," she said.

Like all alumni "Dodo" and her friends shared an alumni bulletin that keeps the approximately 5,000 alumni members in touch.

After a day of touring the Glades, which included a tour of South Bay Growers processing plant, and a showing of the movie "From Seed to Salad," the Rockettes put away their mementos until they meet again.

Participants in the reunion along with Mrs. McGee included Miriam Morgan, Peggy Noble, Pat Anderson, Helen Barrett, and Gladys Kelen.

has a store on the canal bank north of the old dock called Mr. Duffy called to bring her a nickel's worth of candy as the barge cruised slowly by the store. That took care of all the money we had when we left Ritta Island.

It was early the next morning, after daylight, that we arrived at the Sewall Locks on the North New River Canal opposite Davis. There, we sold to the lock tender the chickens and the corn that we had placed on top of the barge. That gave us money to rent a house when we got to Fort Lauderdale. We went five miles, passed under the Henry Flagler railroad bridge and tied up at the dock. The captain told us where we could rent a house. My dad got off the barge, walked east three blocks across to the Andrews bridge and rented a house. It was on 13th Street one half mile on the south side of the river. Daddy was able to get a truck to move the furniture to the house. It was then or soon after that we had electric lights for the first time. We moved in and set up housekeeping that day and the next day my dad went out looking for a job.

He got a job working for a Mr. Gibbs who was in the cement block business two blocks away near the railroad tracks. He pushed a wheelbarrow for $1.00 a day pouring concrete for hand moldings. He worked at this for a week and a half, then the big colored man running the mixer didn't show up. Daddy cranked it up and ran it for two days. Mr. Gibbs paid him $2.00 a day.

Mr. Gibbs got a good contract and my Dad's job was that of setting forms for side walls at the subdivision of Crossland Park. Pay went up as the boom started. In 1923 he bought a Model T Ford. In 1924 the job pouring side walks ended. He got another job mixing mortar at $20.00 a day or better. In 1923 the road to Belle Glade was rock surfaced and one way steel bridges were installed at Twenty Mile Bend, Six Mile Bend and at Belle Glade.

In 1925 my dad bought a truck and started hauling produce from the Glades. In the meantime he had been sending money to Uncle Mays. Later, it turned out that they had overlapped their homestead and after the 1928 hurricane it reverted to the state. My dad bought it back from the state after that.

Water had remained on the land after the rains of 1922 until February of 1923. 1923 was a dry year but the water rose again. In October of 1924 nineteen inches of rain fell and the lake rose seven and one-half feet in five days.

My Uncle Rufus, R.E. Thomas, joined my dad in 1925 and they went in together hauling produce from the lake as farming operations had resumed by then. Our family stayed in Fort Lauderdale and my dad traveled back and forth. I attended the South Side School.

We went through the hurricane of 1926 in Fort Lauderdale. This hurricane wrecked Miami and went on to do much damage to Moore Haven and the west side of Lake Okeechobee. Before it hit, we left our house and went to the home of neighbors, the Smileys. They had a player piano and during the storm they played it even though the house began to shake.

There was a bakery near-by and bread was in the oven and jelly rolls had just put in a big deal. A milk truck stalled nearby. During the height of the hurricane, we got milk out of the truck and then went to the bakery and had milk, bread and jelly rolls to eat. In the second part of the hurricane the road started to blow off the bakery and it didn't down. The windows were blown out. After the hurricane, we went a block and a half to our house figuring it would be blown away. It was still standing, with only a few shingles blown off, but everything still got wet.

do something to bring better organization and efficiency to the administrative staff.

"My only concern is the city's business is big business. It's a multi-million dollar business. And I just don't have the time to do all the things I have to do," she said. "We're getting by."

She suggested hiring a book keeper would be the most economical, but Graydon and Councilwoman Ada Bush both said they felt a book keeper wouldn't solve the problem.

"There's more to it than being a book keeper," said Graydon.

"A book keeper's just a book keeper and you can't make nothing else out of them," said Bill Cross, the public utilities director.

Graydon said the financial statements he receives as a member of the city council don't give him "any idea" of the city's financial situation. Investments, debts and assets aren't listed he said.

"I just wonder if there would be enough for a fulltime job," said Chairman Jon Mock.

"I sure think there would," said Bush. Graydon said the city could continue to rely on the services of the city's engineer and lawyer and relying on certified public accountants to help to keep things straight, but those individuals have fees.

He used the example of the local cities around the lake, Belle Glade, South Bay and Clewiston. "All of them had city managers except Pahokee," he said. "So it can't be that bad a system."

Stauder recommended the city seek free advice from the Florida League of Cities and Tillis said the matter should be brought up for input from the other members of the Tri-City League.

The Tri-City League, consisting of Pahokee, Belle Glade and South Bay, meets next Monday night.

Those figures didn't include engineering studies either, he said.

The only phase of the project that wouldn't need additional engineering studies would be the 13.5 mile stretch between Belle Glade and US 98.

He said the state would essentially be starting over with the rest of the project and would have to discard the studies it had conducted several years ago.

The state had failed to complete the stretch between Belle Glade and US 98 because it had moved from a new construction mode into a rehabilitation mode, he said.

Palm Beach County Commissioner Bill J. Bailey said the county had recently reaffirmed its commitment to float a bond issue to four-lane a segment of state road 80 in the state road seven

Tower reopens in Pahokee after repairs

PAHOKEE -- The observation tower sitting atop the dike at Pahokee Harbor reopened Thursday, January 6, after repairs were made to the wire mesh around the top of the stairs.

According to Richard Mount, the city's Public Works Director, a new section of mesh was welded in Wednesday and painted Friday.

The 100 foot tower was built and repaired with funds raised by the Pahokee Lions Club.

Mount said the repairs cost only $300 of a $500 budget.

Future plans include sandblasting the rusted areas of the tower and repainting it, said Mount.

area. Bailey said he had attempted to have the commission use funds from the bond issue to complete the partially completed segment just east of Belle Glade, but that was defeated.

Belle Glade Mayor Thomas L. Altman asked who the local members of the task force would have to talk and influence to have action taken on the state road 80 project.

Watt suggested the members try to influence the department of transportation and the professionals who make the decisions concerning what roads to work on.

Frank Jones, the chairman of the Canal Hazards Committee, said the Task Force should invite Governor Bob Graham, the state Secretary of Transportation and the chairmen of the state house and senate transportation committees to the Glades to see the roads and discuss the situation.

Jones added that 108 people have died on 80 because of accidents in the past ten years, and that about $44 million in damages have resulted from accidents on the road.

"I appointed the task force because obviously too many generations have waited too long and too many people have died waiting for state road 80 to be four-laned," said Watt at the beginning of the meeting. He said that in his four years in the state legislature, he had never seen as much interest in improving the state's transportation system as he does now.

Arthur H. Goldberg, a representative from Coverdale and Colpitts, a traffic and revenue consulting firm out of New York, made a presentation on the possibility of making SR 80 a toll road in whole or in part.

He said the most viable method of making it a toll road would be to put a toll booth at 20 Mile Bend. He admitted that would create a situation where only the individuals who drove the entire stretch of the road would be contributing for improvements to the entire project.

Making the entire road a toll road from Interstate 95 to Belle Glade would cause problems because of access.

"Most toll roads are built new and compete with already existing roads," he said. "Most toll roads are limited access."

After Goldberg's presentation, Watt said he still felt the committee's goal should be to work for state funding of the project, and not the toll road option.

He urged the members of the task force to talk to state Transportation Secretary Pappas to prevent him from adopting policies which may prevent the four-laning of the road, and to maintain community support for the task force's efforts.

AND WHAT NOT

Everything is out of the ordinary

A couple of weeks ago I attached a dipole antenna to my new portable radio from Santa Clara.

Do not expect to find here a scientific explanation of the dipole antenna. Unscientifically, it's a couple of yards of wire encased in plastic that starts off looking like one tapeworm and ends up looking like two of them. You attach the one end to some screw on the back of the radio and let the two ends climb the wall spread-eagle style. It doesn't do much to decorate the wall but it does fantastic things for the radio reception.

My fervent hope was to bring in a favorite radio station in Miami, but my hope was only half realized. For a few moments there would be the sound of music, followed by fade out and then the raucous refrain of static, sounding like a concerto for an electric shaver. For a week I pondered whether I should change walls, change the antenna direction, or opt between silence and electronically produced katzenmusik. Then one day half the antenna fell off the wall and from that sky on the reception's been perfect.

Now I gaze on that dangling antenna and ponder how much happenstance plays a major role in the best laid plans of ours.

Who knows how much brain sweat went into the theory behind the dipole antenna? Chances are that the discovery was made, not to provide a cheap aerial for home radio receivers, but resulted from years of research in astrophysics for a means of communication in space. And while the discoverer still labors with hand among the clouds, as it were, an enterprising upstart has made a fortune peddling the antennas for home use.

All of this is conjecture on my part. The only thing of which I am certain is that the original instructions did not include dangling one end of the antenna over the window frame of a spaceship, satellite, or bedroom.

Who hasn't spent thousands of dollars for an automobile, into which went hundreds of thousands of dollars of research and development, but which displayed a minor quirk of one kind or another that no mechanic could find and fix. The horn that blows only when hit in a certain spot. A starter that only kicks over when the gas pedal is half-deeply pumped, or ignored entirely. A dome light with an independent energy source that comes and goes at will.

There are television sets and vending machines that operate only when punched, kicked, or shaken. Clocks that run only when placed face down.

Above whatever order exists in this world, Murphy's laws rule supreme. It's enough to make skeptics of some and gamblers of others. The world may have been created out of chaos but there's still a lot of it around today.

Cattlemen support brucellosis fight

Florida cattlemen have gone on record to intensify the efforts to "eradicate" the cattle disease, brucellosis.

Meeting this month in Ft. Pierce, the Florida Cattlemen's Association (FCA) asked that legal action under the current state law be taken against those cattle owners reluctant to have their cattle tested for the disease and voted to seek additional legislation to make it mandatory to vaccinate calves under the program.

"Both actions not only indicate that the majority of the state cattlemen are anxious to move forward with the testing program, but that they also are keenly interested in expanding the scope of the program in an effort to accelerate it to a successful conclusion," said State Veterinarian Dr. C. L. Campbell.

The current state and federal eradication program operates under Chapter 585 of the Florida Statutes which requires all cattle in the state to be under an approved brucellosis eradication program and that all test-eligible cattle be tested.

Cattle owners not complying with the statutes are subject to court-ordered testing at government expense.

Dr. Campbell told the gathering of cattlemen that four lawsuits were filed this month after all reasonable efforts to test the cattle failed and that a stepped-up legal effort was being made to bring all cattlemen into compliance with the law.

Truth will be the winner

Allegations of bribery, brutality, and tampering with evidence have arisen recently regarding the Clewiston Police Department.

The Hendry County Grand Jury has issued indictments against three Clewiston police officers and criticized administrative procedures within the department as well.

All of this has brought unwanted bad publicity to the City of Clewiston and to the Clewiston Police Department.

Despite the allegations of wrongdoing, it must be remembered that nothing has yet been proven in court. The indictments are only indictments, not proof of guilt.

As should be expected, recent events have generated much discussion among local residents.

A petition in support of Chief of Police Robert Dyars, containing approximately 150 names, was received by this office last week. According to the woman who brought in the petition, there were many additional signatures on another sheet of paper which she had misplaced.

There are many in the community who see Dyars as an honorable, low-key, quietly efficient man who did much to correct problems of the past. That is our impression too.

We would hope that the indictments will not be seen as an indictment of every person in the department, because this is not the case.

It must be noted, however, that where there is this much smoke, there is probably some fire too.

Until we know more about the case, its best for all concerned to withhold judgement.

Once again, we see that our system isn't required to prove itself once, but rather repeatedly. This protects all citizens and keeps alive the fragile ideal of justice.

We are confident that truth will be known in the end.

Taking the public's advice

When the Pahokee City Council and the city's Planning and Zoning Board sat down Tuesday night, January 4, to discuss possible revisions to the ordinances governing the placement of trailers in the city, the discussion quickly shifted to housing problems in the city in general.

It should have become obvious to the council and board members that trailers are not the single biggest issue facing the city. In fact, against the other problems facing it, trailers may not be a problem at all.

The city, like almost every community in the nation, has a housing problem, especially among the poor.

However, in contrast to other communities which are attempting to do something constructive about the problem, Pahokee has chosen to pay lip service to the needs of the poor and concentrate instead on about 25 possibly illegally placed trailers.

Perhaps one resident at the meeting summed it up best when he asked "What's wrong with trailers?"

We find nothing objectionable about trailers. One board member in the past had stated that a trailer will eventually get old and become a slum trailer if the city has no means of getting it out.

Why the concern over what 25 trailers will look like 20 years down the road when they have eyesore after eyesore of permanent structures in the city right now?

We suggest the city concentrate on cleaning up the permanent housing situation before it tackles anything so minor as trailers.

There are means at its disposal. The Hattons, J. Ray and J. Ray II, have informed the council that if the city demands the first available opening at Pahokee Housing Authority or Hatton Property housing projects, the authority and the private firm are obligated by law to oblige.

They also informed the council of methods of removing condemned structures and regaining any funds it spent on the projects.

The city council could also look at the work and progress the city of Belle Glade has made through the Community Development Program. Belle Glade is by no means a model city yet, but at least it is taking the time and initiative to do something about its problems.

As is so often stated in renovating dilapidated housing, progress takes time. But you must take those first steps.

Letters to the editor

your neighbors children. Think it over...the decision is yours.

Bob Adams

Dear Editor:

Regarding last week's column "Boiler Plate", I write this as someone who has spent most of his life in Miami and Dade County.

I am very happy and content to be here in Clewiston. Drug abuse and alcoholism among the youth, and I might also add among adults as well, represents the most vile and reprehensible thing that they might do against themselves, their family and loved ones.

I think that Dr. Thomas should have added the following:

Citizen, if you're not for doing something about the drug abuse and alcoholism among the youth in this city of ours then you are for its continuation. By not doing anything about it you are assuring its continuation and you will merit the undying gratitude of the slime who will continue supplying drugs to your children, your grandchildren, and past?

There are, in fact, many "refugees" from Miami. I can not judge why they left Miami. However I do know that there are many who do not want to leave. There are those who acknowledge that Miami does have its serious problems but they are willing to stay and work for solutions. They are proud of their community and can see in it many positive elements that outsiders can not see.

They hope for a time when Miami can take its place among the great cities of America. Few cities in this country have been dealt so many problems as Miami, and yet there are many who feel that this tri-cultural city will be able to overcome them.

You state in your title that "The Union Should Allow Miami to Secede". Unlike the "Conch Republic" of Key West, Miami does not want to secede. It may have its problems, but in time its citizens may have the last laugh.

Rev. Joseph Stearns
Editor:
Over the Christmas Holidays my family had the opportunity to spend some time in your city visiting relatives.

This was our first visit to Florida and I'm happy we picked your town to start with. Besides being a beautiful city, the people were very friendly and gracious, not to mention your "out of this world" climate.

We enjoyed many happy hours watching the sugar cane fields being burned. The canals and lakes were beautiful.

I called City Hall one day to inquire about a public pool. The very nice lady I talked to told me that this was winter and the pools were closed. That was my only disappointment. We had just left northern Tennessee and snow on the ground and came to where the temperature was in the 80's, and I couldn't believe this was winter. But that wasn't stop us from coming to your city again. In fact, we can't wait until next Christmas for we are already making plans to visit Clewiston again.

Sincerely yours,
Mr. and Mrs. Underwood

BOILER PLATE

The past wasn't so long ago

The Glades area has an unusual history and some of the most interesting parts of it occurred about 40 years ago when British Royal Air Force cadets were trained as pilots at Riddle Field, and German prisoners of war were interned at Liberty Point and Belle Glade.

I had the opportunity to attend a Calusa Valley Historical Society meeting last week and the history of Riddle Field — now known as Airglades Airport — came vividly to life.

Two highlights in the past: John Davis' recollections as an instructor at the field and Art Lawrence's movie.

Although Davis became well acquainted with the twin perils of death and destruction in the course of teaching hundreds of cadets to fly, his memories of that period are fond and he made friendships which have withstood the test of four decades and a separation of thousands of miles.

His respect for the RAF pilots remains undimmed.

A nice turnout of about 40 persons sat enthralled for the better part of an hour as Davis talked without benefit of notes about the courage and drive that the young British fliers demonstrated here.

Equally fascinating was Lawrence's film, which was shot in color and showed the British standing in formation before brand-new barracks buildings, a crowd of local dignitaries, a black locomotive spouting smoke and pulling into a train station, and young ladies smartly dressed in the latest 1943 fashion.

I think the reason the film was so fascinating for me was that it brought the era to life.

At one point we saw cadets marching along with their exaggerated arm swing and saluting in their peculiar British way. At another we saw an overflight of planes in formation. And at yet another there was a young woman with bouncing blond curls.

One of the ladies in the audience remarked afterward that her late husband was among the local dignitaries who were filmed visiting the field. I'm sure that fleeting moment gave her a special feeling.

Seldom have I seen history brought to life so well.

After all, history is nothing more than the story of what people did. It's no small feat when history can be brought to life the way that it really was.

Firestone's job

While speaking with Floridians around the state and with those visiting the Florida capital in past months, two things became clear. First, though most people have a wondrous fascination with their government, its trappings and its activities, very few have a clear understanding of how it works and what it's trying to accomplish.

But even more disturbing — on a personal level, anyway — was the fact, that while many people have heard of the Department of State and, happily, the Secretary of State, far too few know what we do here in an agency that I believe is one of the most interesting and diverse in state government.

We will try to remedy that now.

The Florida Department of State is like an old-time wagon with several spokes. Each of those spokes represents a division that deals with a different subject area and provides unique services to a particular constituent group. The diversity in the Department of State is apparent from the names of the divisions: Cultural Affairs; Corporations; Archives, History and Records Management; Elections; Library Services; and Licensing. Our seventh division, Administration, helps keep the whole wheel turning smoothly.

The hub of the wheel is the Office of the Secretary where policy decisions are made, programming goals are established and some very important activities occur. One of the most visible of these activities is the role of the Secretary of State as a member with several spokes. Each of those spokes is unique in that it has a multiple, statewide elected, executive team. The Governor and six Cabinet members, all with equal votes, set policy and make decisions on issues that relate to Florida's economy, education, the environment, and law enforcement. The Governor and Cabinet also oversee the operation of the state's departments of: General Services, Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles, Revenue Law Enforcement, and Natural Resources.

The Secretary of State also serves as the state's Chief Protocol Officer and liaison in dealing with representatives of foreign governments. The Office of the Secretary is often the first stop of diplomats and officials of other nations when they have business with the state of Florida.

Working closely with the Florida Consular Corps, the Secretary of State promotes economic and cultural exchanges between Florida and other nations.

Whether working with various constituent groups, the Cabinet, or foreign diplomats, there is one common thread that runs through all of the Secretary of State's duties and responsibilities: helping to protect and enhance Florida's unique quality of life.

Christian Day basketball team wins 3 to up record to 5-5

BELLE GLADE - The Belle Glade Christian Crusaders won all three of their games last week to bring their record to the .500 mark.

Indian River Academy lost Tuesday, January 4, when the Crusaders ran up a 81-42 victory. Eleven Crusaders played and all of them scored, according to Coach Woody Salvatore.

Tim Mann led the team with 20 points and 18 rebounds, followed by Alex Morales with 15 points. Don Curran led Indian River with 33 points, but he got little help from the rest of the team.

Friday, January 7, the Crusaders squeaked by Fort Myers Evangelical 57-52. The Crusaders were down 39-44 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but outscored Fort Myers 18-8 in the last quarter to win the game.

Morales led the team with 16 points and Roly Ramos scored 11. Ramos picked up 15 rebounds.

Saturday, the Crusaders had a rematch with Fort Myers Christian. Before Christmas, Fort Myers Christian had downed the Crusaders 59-50. The Crusaders avenged that loss this time, beating Fort Myers Christian 74-62.

Morales hit for 20 points to lead the team and Tavi Garcia was the team's second leading scorer with 19 points. Ramos hit for 13 and Robert Echols scored 10.

Cary McKee gathered 16 rebounds and Ramos picked up 14.

"It was another overall team effort," Salvatore said of the Crusaders' second come from behind victory in two days. Christian Day was down 47-46 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but scored 28 points, including 10 by Morales, to put them ahead of their opponents.

"It was the best one quarter output of the year so far," said Salvatore. "They tired out and we just ran them."

"That last week really helped us out," said Salvatore. The Crusaders had entered the week with a 2-5 record. "I think they just took an early vacation," he said of the slump the Crusaders fell into prior to the Christmas break.

"We're short. We seem to be improving though. I'm encouraged about the season though," said Salvatore. "They aren't consistent right now. We're working on consistency. They fluctuate too much from game to game."

Unbeaten Gators beat LaBelle, Benjamin and Palm Vista

BELLE GLADE - The Glades Day School Gators basketball team upped its record to 5-0 with victories last week over Benjamin, Palm Vista and LaBelle.

The Gators beat Benjamin January 4 57-39 behind Luis Garcia, who led the team with 16 points and 16 rebounds.

He also picked up one assist.

Raul Garcia followed with 13 points, five rebounds and two assists.

Later that week, Palm Vista fell to the Gators in a crushing 80-52 defeat. Turnovers proved the key. Raul Garcia and Brian Lohmann each stole the ball from Palm Vista six times. Mike Schlechter picked up four steals and Jorge Rodriguez two. Luis Garcia stole the ball once.

Raul Garcia also led the team with 23 points, followed by Luis Garcia with 15 and Schlechter with 13. Lohmann scored 11 and Rodriguez 10.

Luis Garcia recovered 11 rebounds, Schlechter six and Raul Garcia five. Lohmann gathered three and Rodriguez two.

Friday, the Gators defeated LaBelle 63-51. Luis Garcia again led the team with 22 points and 12 rebounds.

Lohmann scored 21 points and stole the ball four times to lead the team.

Luis Garcia is the team's leading scorer, having hit 89 points in five games for a 17.8 points per game average. He's hit 37 field goals and 15 free throws. He also averages 10.5 rebounds per game.

This week the Gators face Moore Haven and King's Academy, which is ranked among the top ten in the state.

"We'll find a little more we're made of."

"We hope to keep it going," continued Walker.

"We're building up to the district tournament."

It's sort of a shame how you play 20 games a year and you decide the district champion in a short three or four games.

Walker said he thinks the Gators can be contenders for the district crown if this year's performance is any indication. He pointed out that the team didn't practice until three days prior to its first game because of football.

With only three days of practice, the Gators won two straight and claimed its own tournament crown.

"We have good outside shooting," said Walker. "They hustle and they're aggressive outside. We plan to improve some every week."

The Gators travel to King's Academy Friday evening.

Pahokee plans spiritual week

PAHOKEE—"Spiritual Growth Week" will be observed here, Jan. 24-28, with evening services at the Prince Theater under the sponsorship of the Pahokee-Canal Point Ministerial Association.

The first night's program will be sponsored by the Baptist churches of the two communities and will begin at 7:30 p.m. Each of the Christian churches in the area will be responsible for a one night program.

The Church of God will be the host for the Tuesday night session. On Wednesday, Jan. 26, the Methodist churches will host the program.

Thursday will be a special Hispanic night. The Spanish and English language program will feature English-Apostolica of Pahokee.

The Rev. A.F. Donovan, pastor of the First United Methodist Church and president of the Ministerial Association, said the Hispanic population is one of the largest in the community.

The final service will feature the black congregation. The city's black citizens make up about one half of the town's population.

"Everyone from all the churches in the community are asked to participate," the Rev. Donovan said.

The host church will provide the evangelist, as well as special music for the occasion. A no admission will be charged. A free will offering will be accepted each night of the meeting. The offering will go to the Ministerial Association Transient and Needy Fund, the Rev. Donovan said.

Florida State Fair returns to Tampa in February

Florida's 79th annual State Fair will run from Wednesday, Feb. 2, through Sunday Feb. 13.

This year's premium monies offered to participants will exceed $160,000, as compared with last year's $140,000, according to Doyle E. Carlton Jr., chairman of the Florida State Fair Authority.

The slogan of this year's fair is "The place to be in '83."

More than 900 free entertainment events will be held, offering continuous free entertainment from noon until 8 p.m. daily.

Free admissions will also be offered. On opening day, Pepsi Cola will distribute thousands of tickets good for grounds admission. All students through high school age will be admitted free on Gasparilla Day, Monday, Feb. 7, and anyone carrying a camera will be admitted free Feb. 9.

Livestock and horse shows are scheduled throughout the fair with some 3,000 to be entered in competition.

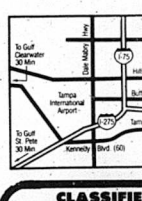

Senior citizens will be saluted Feb. 3 and 10 when those of the age of 62 will be admitted for $1.50. Special programs, entertainment, contests and activities are planned.

The state fair cheerleading contest and the championship chili cook-off will be held Feb. 6. An auctioneer contest will be held Feb. 7 and a dance and drill team competition is scheduled Feb. 13.

Admission remains at $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for children 6-12, with children five and under admitted free. Parking is $1.50.

The fair will open daily at 10 a.m. and admissions will be on weekdays and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The fairgrounds are located east of Tampa on U.S. 1, exit Buffalo Avenue or US301 for the entry gate.
